Common Sense®

Leonard, Street and Deinard's Energy team is proud to serve as a longtime trusted partner and advisor to biofuels industry leaders.

Our Energy attorneys work successfully with biofuels industry players—producers, project coordinators, builders, lenders, federal and state regulatory agencies, local counsel and other advisors—providing pragmatic and creative solutions to their unique legal and business needs and challenges. Our attorneys have worked closely with biofuels stakeholders for over a decade, providing counsel not only on capital structures, financing and corporate governance matters, but also the negotiation of supplier, marketing and transportation agreements, environmental matters, tax compliance and labor relations. In fact, we have represented ethanol and biodiesel projects equal to more than two billion gallons of production capacity.

We continue to represent biofuels companies and their service providers on a day-to-day basis. We assist our biofuels clients with the acquisition of distressed assets, represent them as creditors in bankruptcy matters and serve as outside general counsel to a major biofuels marketing organization.
