Leonard, Street and Deinard's environmental attorneys represent energy companies in all aspects of federal and state environmental law. Whether the need is to obtain all of the permits for the development of a major electrical generating plant or to provide a vigorous defense in an agency enforcement proceeding, Leonard, Street and Deinard is able to meet the challenge. The following are just some of the environmental and permitting areas in which we serve energy companies:

- Power plant siting
- High voltage transmission line routing
- Natural gas pipeline routing
- Wind generator siting
- Air emissions permits
- Water appropriation permits
- Wastewater disposal permits
- Stormwater permits
- Wetlands permits
- Environmental impact statements
- Endangered species reviews and approvals
- Hazardous waste generator licenses
- Historic and cultural resource reviews and approvals
- Storage tank permits
- Emergency planning and community right to know
